

NMC MUSIC FOUNDATION Annual Report

Report to the Public

On behalf of the incredible board of Directors at the NMC MUSIC FOUNDATION, we were very grateful to work through the challenges brought on by the pandemic in 2021.

2021 began with the National Music Centre being closed to the public, and midway through the year we were given the go ahead by health authorities to reopen our doors, and welcome the return of visitors to safely experience the exhibition galleries, Collections, and programming at Studio Bell, while adhering to evolving public health restrictions, so the public could feel safe enjoying the visitor experience.

During this time NMC MUSIC FOUNDATION's primary focus was the completion and submission of the CCPERB designation application.

All Education programming was put on hold for the 2021 year, with some piloting programs in anticipation that we have schools visiting Studio Bell in 2022. Despite the setbacks of early 2021, the National Music Centre welcomed 34,668 visitors to Studio Bell, and had 3954 people attend live events and programming. We added four new objects to the exhibition spaces.
